

“A defeat calls for reorganization, not retirement”

A failure or defeat should prompt us to rethink our strategies and approach. It should not make us retire from the effort. It should make us think how we can reorganize our human and material resources so that we succeed the next time....Have you tried solving puzzles? If you do not solve it, it does not mean that the right solution does not exist....There is surely the right way in doing the things. If we do not get it, reorganize your thinking and try again. You will definitely get it.If not the next time, the next time, for sure.
