

We have choice: to plough new ground or let the weeds grow.

By law of nature, if something is not used, it will tend to decay. This is true for the physical body and the intellectual body. If the ground is not formed and ploughed, the weeds will creep up and the land becomes unusable. In life and business too, we need to continuously seek new opportunities for growth. Remaining stagnant is death, growth is lifeand life is growth.
